PHILIP HUNTON
AND
HIS DESCENDANTS

“Aye, thus it is, — one generation comes,
Another goes, and mingles in the dust :
And thus we come and go, and come and go,
Each, for a little moment, filling up
Some little place ; and thus we disappear
In quick succession ; and it shall be so
Till time, in one vast perpetuity,
Be swallowed up.”

TO MY BOYS

My father, who was interested in the traditions of our family, used to take me on his knee and tell me the story of the captivity of Philip and the slaying of Samuel. I have verified the story, added to it other facts, and transmit it to you.

ARMS

THE Arms of the family of HUNTON in the county of Wiltshire in England are described as follows: Sable on a chevron, ermine between three talbots passant, argent; crest, a demi-talbot rampant and erased, argent. Granted 1578.

WILLIAM HUNTON, of Wiltshire, changed this coat of arms somewhat, and Cook calls attention to the fact in his visitation of Wiltshire in 1623. I have seen, in the College of Heraldry at London, this old coat roughly drawn in pen and ink. The coat, which was granted to William Hunton in heraldic language, is thus blazoned: —

“Ar. on a chev. per pale, gu. and az. between three talbots passant, sa. as many stags' heads caboshed, or; crest, a demi-talbot, gu. collared and eared, or, holding between his paws a stag's head caboshed of the first.”

There is no motto recorded with the arms.

N A M E

THE word "Hunton" is of Saxon origin and of great antiquity. Hunt or hont signifies a hunter, and is connected with the word Hund, a hound or dog. Ton or tun means an enclosure. From the first colonization by the Saxons, innumerable places received the generic name of ton. If a place had a clay soil, it was called Clayton; if it occupied an eminence, Hillton; if it was good ground for game, Hunton. The Saxon words ley and ton are synonymous, and are the most common of family names derived from names of towns, according to an old saw, —

" In ford, in ham, in ley, in ton,
The most of English surnames run."

The priory of Hunton was situated upon land which had formerly been devoted to hunting, perhaps on the very site of a hunter's lodge. English heraldry delights in punning devices, and tun constantly occurs to represent ton in a rebus upon some name ending in that syllable; as a tun, pierced by a bolt, Bolton; a lute on a tun, Luton; a shell on a tun, Shelton; and a "hen sitting on a tun for his priory, Hunton." John Huntington, Rector of Ashton-under-Lyme, bore for his arms "An huntsman with dogges, whereby he thought to expresse the two former syllables of his name Hunting, and on the other side a vessell called a tonne." When the Hunton coat of arms was granted, it is evident, from the talbots or hunting dogs and the stags' heads with which it is adorned, that the designer attempted to pun on the name of Hunton. A pun much more to the credit of our family, however, is said to have been perpetrated in later days. In 1830, when a gubernatorial convention in Maine was seeking a candidate, and was unable to decide between two candidates, some one in the audience shouted, "Men enough, Hunt on, Hunt on!" and Governor Hunton was nominated.

It is a common error to suppose that in ancient days persons gave names to places; the reverse is true. Thousands of our English surnames are derived from names of towns, villages, and obscure hamlets. At the time of the Conquest there were few, if any, surnames, and young men assumed the name of the lands allotted to them, with the prefix de or d'; this also was dropped about the time of Henry VI. There are several parishes in England called Hunton that existed long before the time of William the Conqueror. The priory is called by some authors "Hunton," bears on its seal the word "Hinton," and judging by its arms it should have been pronounced Henton.

It is beyond doubt that the names Hanton, Henton, Hinton, Honton, Hunton, and Hynton, if not synonymous, have at least been used indiscriminately by persons bearing either the one or the other surname, and I am corroborated in this opinion by the learned antiquary Charles Bridger, Esq., of London, author of "Index to English Pedigrees," who says "that these names, all found in Wiltshire, are probably allied." For instance, in 1558, "Griffith Hinton wills to his son Thomas Hynton." In 1559, "Jane Hynton gave to the children of Richard Hynton," &c.; but this Richard, his father, and his grandfather are called, in the visitations in Wiltshire, Hunton. "In 1629, Robert Henton wills to Robert Hinton and William Hinton, sons of my brother John Hinton deceased," &c. In 1632, William Henton of Weeke, County Wiltshire, wills "to my brother John Hinton," &c., and appoints him sole executor, and when he proves the will he signs his name "John Henton."

Christopher Hinton, dying in 1647, wills to John Hynton "all my lands in Hynton," and Mr. Bridger informs me that Philip Hunton of Westbury, the celebrated nonconformist divine, sometimes wrote his name Hinton; this was about 1680. The biographers of Sir Henry Unton describe him as Unton or Hunton; so much for Old England. "Cælum non anumum, mutant, qui trans mare currunt?"

On the 28th of May, 1635, William Hynton left London in the Speedwell for New England. This is probably the same Will Hunton who was granted land in the town of Hampton, N. H., in 1643. In 1676, a Captain Hunton figures in the Sudbury fight, and in 1701, a Captain Huntoon is seen at Salisbury, Mass., but these were not of our race.

In 1697, the town of Exeter granted to Phillip Huntune, in 1702, Huntoon of Exeter.

In 1719, John Fifield deeds to Philip Hunton, &c. In 1729, it is Huntoon. In 1734, Jacob Gilman deeds to Philip Hounton. In 1760, Josiah Judkins sells one-half of the house situated in Kingston, which

Philip Hunton built and now owns, and this deed is signed by Samuel Hunton as a witness. In 1771, Nathaniel Hunton signs a deed of land in Unity, with his own autograph, and Charles Huntoon signs with his autograph as a witness. When Nathaniel Huntoon was married the first time he wrote "o," when he was married the second time he wrote "oo;" the circle of his happiness was doubled. (?)

I have a commission from Jonathan G. Hunton, Governor of Maine, authorizing Rev. Benjamin Huntoon, then of Bangor (1831), "to solemnize marriages in each and every of our counties within the State." The records of the town of Kingston spell the name Hunton, Hontune, Hunt-ton, Hunttoon, Huntune. In one case Thomas Sleeper deeds to John Hantoon. Daniel Webster, writing to his old schoolmaster, James Tappan, says: "On the north road is Mr. Benjamin Hunton, and on the south road Mr. Benjamin Pettingill. I think of none else among the living whom you would probably remember." And so down to the moment of writing we have varied.

The gravestones of the children of Philip the immigrant, erected before his death, read "Hunton," and this is the correct spelling.

PARISHES IN ENGLAND

Hunton. — A parish in the hundred of Twyford, lathe of Anglesford, county of Kent, six miles from Maidstone. The living is a rectory, and in the jurisdiction and patronage of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a neat edifice, containing some handsome monuments of the Fanes. The river Beult runs through the parish, and falls into the Medway at Salding. In the forty-first of Henry III. (1257), Nicholas de Lenham was proprietor of Hunton.

Of the delightful situation of the rectorial mansion, Dr. J. Beattie, who visited it in July, 1784, says: "Hunton parsonage is delightfully situated about half-way down a hill fronting the south. My windows contain a prospect extending southward about twelve miles, and from east to west I suppose not less than forty. In the whole space I do not see a single speck of ground that is not in the highest degree cultivated. The lawns in the neighborhood, the hop grounds, the rich verdure of the trees, and their endless variety, form a scenery so picturesque and so luxuriant that it is not easy to fancy anything finer. Add to this the cottages, churches, and villages rising here and there among the trees, and scattered over the whole country, clumps of oaks and other lofty trees dispersed in ten thousand different forms, and you will have some idea of the beauty of Hunton."

Hunton. — A chapelry in the parish of Crawley, hundred of Buddlesgate, Fawley Division of the county of Southampton, five and a half miles from Whitechurch. This chapelry is within the peculiar jurisdiction of the Rector of Crawley. The chapel is dedicated to St. James.

Hunton. — A chapelry partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the parish of Hornby, eastern division, but chiefly in the parish of Brompton Patrick, North Riding of the county of York, six miles from Richmond. The living is a perpetual curacy with that of Brompton Patrick in the diocese of Chester. The chapel has been demolished.

In 1873, the residence of Henry Campbell Bannerman, M.P., was at Hunton Court, Kent.

The Boston Evening Transcript of Jan. 12, 1862, gives an account of a battle fought thirty-five miles from Fort Pillow, at a place called "Huntoon's Mills," on the morning of the 8th.

Lippincott's Gazetteer mentions "Huntoon, a station in Pickaway County, Ohio, on the Scioto Valley Railroad."

GLEANINGS IN ENGLAND

WHETHER our ancestors came from France or England, there is no doubt that families by our name have existed in the latter country from a very early period. "In 1272, I find Thomas de Honton and William de Hunton; in 1327, Petro de Hunton." The Hintons of America have, the following account of their origin: "The family was originally of Flemish stock. Peter Hunton came to England as a retainer in the train of Philippa, daughter of William III., Earl of Hainault in Flanders, who married Edward III. of England. This Hunton settled at Eastney, near Portsmouth in Hampshire. Nothing further is known of them, until Queen Elizabeth, in consideration of a loan of money to carry out some project against France, granted to William Hinton, a London merchant, and a descendant of old Peter Hunton, the following arms," &c. In 1349, we find Robert de Hunton, son Thomas, and grandson Roger. In 1359, Adam de Honton, LL.D., was rector of Croydon. In 1470, Thomas Hunton succeeded Robert Westgate as head of the convent and prior of the monastery of Winchester, and governed until 1498. "Anthony Hunton, an English author, matriculated at Christ College, Cambridge, 1575, M.L., 1589, author of Latin verses," &c. In 1620, Dr. Anthony Hunton, possibly the same person, "paid £25 to Sir Samuel Smith about the time of the settlement of Virginia." Buried in the church at Towse-with-Newton, Hannah, the dearly beloved wife of John Hunton, Dec. 9, 1707; her husband, "Johannes Hunton, generous, died May 28, 1714." In 1675, Thomas Hunton was sworn mayor of Salisbury, England.

The Wiltshire Hunttons. — The registry of the parish of East Knoyle in Wiltshire dates from 1438. The first name that occurs is Brethers, 1439; next follows that of Hunton, which is continued in the parish register to the year 1636. The names Collingsborough and Hunton almost completely fill the register from 1543 to 1589. Richard Hunton had a lease of Knoyle in 1533. William Hunton, son of this Richard, by will, 1581, gives to William Huntonne his son, "my best goblet and my ring of gold." I have quite an account of this family.

The Hampshire Huntons.—The reader will notice the wonderful similarity of Christian names in the Hampshire branch with that of our immigrant ancestor and his children. Philip, living in 1610, had sons (1) Philip, (2) John. Philip lived at Andover, in Hampshire, m. Elizabeth, had (3) Jonathan and (4) Philip. (2) John, of Winchester, County Southampton, will proved 1618 by Philip his brother, had Austin, John, Elizabeth. (3) Jonathan, of Andover, by will proved 1659, gives "to my son Phillipp and my two daughters Elizabeth and Mary," "to pay to my son Phillipp his portion at the age of twenty-two years;" and "I charge my son and daughters to be dutiful and obedient to their grandmother . . . and if either of them prove stubborn and disobedient, that with the consent of my overseers, she have power to give their portion unto the other of them that are more dutiful." The children of Jonathan were Jonathan, living in 1683, Philip, Elizabeth, Mary. (4) Philip was born in Andover, in Hampshire, about 1598; entered Wadham College, 1622; A.B. 1626; A.M. 1629. "Entering the sacred function, he became successively schoolmaster of Aburie in Wiltshire, perpetual curate of Heytesbury (1630-1639) and of Westbury. He was also prebend of Tytherington. In 1654, he was appointed an assistant to the commissioner of Wilts for the ejecting of such whom the Presbyterians, Independents, and other factious people called scandalous, ignorant, and insufficient ministers. In 1657, he was appointed first provost of the New College at Durham erected by Oliver Cromwell. He had also in the North the rich living of Sedgfield, in the bishopric of Durham. He had upwards of £200 assigned him, which he lost upon the return of the old incumbent, Dr. Nailor, in 1660. His writings were 'A Treatise of Monarchy,' London, 1643, answered by Dr. Ferne and Sir Robert Filmer, London, 1644. He also wrote 'A Vindication of Monarchy,' 1644. This was reprinted when the press was open in 1680. The principles announced in this book were condemned by a decree of the University of Oxford, 1683, and the book itself burnt in the quadrangle. This decree and judgment of the University was itself as publicly burnt in the New Palace Yard, Westminster, by order of the House of Lords, March 27, 1710, as contrary to the constitution of the kingdom and destructive to the Protestant succession. When the Prince of Orange came into England, it was again printed in London, 1689. He wrote a book called 'Jus Regis,' London, 1645. I can say no more of the author than that he was a man of parts." Nicholson says of him (1714, p. 183): "I think we ought to take some notice of those who have ventured to treat upon the rights of our monarchs and the extent and amplitude of their royal power. Philip Hunton, a non-conformist minister, published the most learned treatise on monarchy of any of the writers of his party." In answer to this, Sir Robert Filmer published his "Anarchy of a Limited and Mixed Monarchy." It is likely that Hunton had met with some more early antagonist, since before the appearance of Sir Robert's book, he printed a vindication of monarchy, &c.

After the college was dissolved at Durham, Philip Hunton retired to Westbury. In 1662, he was ejected from his living for nonconformity. He held afterwards conventicles, notwithstanding. He married Anne —, a widow with a good jointure, some years before his death, which occurred July 1, 1682. He was buried in the church at Westbury.

John Hunton of Kerlington County, York, will proved June 30, 1657.

There are Huntons in Cambridgeshire. The name is common in English directories to-day, and I saw in an ancient churchyard in London the name Robert Hunton on a gravestone. The historian of the county of Cheshire speaks of the Hintons, yet the manuscript of the visitation of Cheshire in the British Museum reads Hunton.

The Untons of Berkshire often were called Hunton, likewise the Untons of Sculthorpe in Norfolk.

GLEANINGS IN VIRGINIA

THE Huntons of Virginia are not connected with the New England family. The connection, if any exists, was before the immigration. The Virginia family invariably cling to the original orthography, and use only one "o." The founder of this family was (1) Thomas, a gentleman of property, who settled in Lancaster County, Va., about the year 1700. He m., November, 1722, Mary Carrell; his will was admitted to record in 1746. He left four daughters and four sons: (2) Thomas, (3) Alexander, (4) William, (5) John. (2) Thomas purchased the interest of the others in the real estate of his father. He resided for many years in Lancaster County, but removed to Middlesex County, where he died in 1792. He was an officer in the Revolutionary War. He m. Miss Gerby, and had (6) Thomas G., John W., Frances, m. James Brent of Lancaster County, Elizabeth W., Polly B., Judith M. (4) William moved from Lancaster to Farquier County, m. Judith Kirk, and is buried near New Baltimore: he had (7) James, John, (8) William, (9) Thomas E., Ann, m. W. O. (6) Thomas G., m., December, 1774, Elizabeth Hinton(?): had Jane F., m. W. W. Brown; Thomas H., of Northumberland, Lancaster County, Va.; and five died young. (7) James, b. July 31, 1763, m. (1), Feb. 6, 1786, Hannah L. Brown, of King George County, b. Feb. 11, 1765, d. March 4, 1806; m. (2), May 1, 1809, Elizabeth McNish, b. May 7, 1767; had (11) Charles, (12) Eppa; James, b. May 16, 1791, d. June 19, 1791; Silas, b. Oct. 23, 1792; Judith, b. July 1, 1795, m. John Hampton; William E., b. Aug. 8, 1799, a lawyer, who died, as did all his children; (13) Thomas Logan; Margaret L., b. March 1, 1805, m. (1) Arthur Blackwell, (2) John Brown. (8) William, b. 1769, d. 1839, m. (1) Miss

Steel, (2) Miss Gilbert: had Edwin, b. 1811; (14) William G.; Mildred, m. Dr. Moss; Spencer C.; Lucretia; Mary Ann; Joseph G., b. 1827. (9) Thomas E., b. 1771, d. 1826, m. (1) Miss Fitzhugh, (2) Matilda Brent; served his county in the Legislature: had (15) Thomas E.; Lucelia, m. James W. Foster; (16) John Brent; Robert Henry, d. 1869. (10) Thomas, b. at Charlottesville, Albemarle County, emigrated to Stanford, Ky., about 1818, where in a few years he died, leaving a family of young children as follows: (17) Logan; Mary, m. McRoberts of Nashville, Tenn.; Sallie; Priscilla; Felix; Eliza Dane, m. Hon. F. T. Fox, of Danville, Ky., Feb. 16, 1830; (18) Thomas. (11) Charles, b. Jan. 4, 1787, d. 1854; he represented his county in the State Legislature for twelve years: had James William; (19) Charles Henry; Jane, m. Dr. Leach, of Prince William County; Amelia, m. Dr. Dorsey Harrison; Mary; Eugenia. (12) Eppa, b. Jan. 30, 1789, m. Elizabeth May Brent: had Virginia Fredonia; John Heath, d. November, 1842; Silas Brown, m. M. A. Rixey; (20) James Innis; (21) Eppa; George William, m. M. V. Perry; Hannah Brown Neal, m. Lycurgus Smith, d. 1845; Judith Ann, m. M. O. Butcher; Elizabeth M., m. J. M. Morehead, d. 1873; Mary Brent, b. 1829, m. Thomas R. Foster; Charles Arthur, d. young. (13) Thomas Logan, b. April 23, 1802, m. Ann D. D. Moxley, of Prince William County: had James D.; James G., d. February, 1858; Lucie J., m. Charles Green, of Savannah, Ga. (14) William G. had William; Henry; and a daughter, m. Gaskins. (15) Thomas Edward, b. 1813, had Thomas Ernest, killed in the war; Luisie Laura; Margaret. (16) John Brent, b. 1822, m. (1) Miss Bixey, (2) Miss Moss: had Matilda, m. A. C. Sorrell; John W.; Alfred; George; Roberta; Mary; Anna; Edgar; Charles; Eva. (17) Logan, b. in Albemarle County, Va. In regard to his family Mr. Hunton writes me, "I regret that my information upon the subject referred to is so meagre that I cannot aid you. We are a restless, migratory people, having little reverence for the dead past or care for the dread future, and thus memorials of the past are lost." I find the following sketch of Logan Hunton in "Sketches of Distinguished Lawyers," p. 127: "Being thrown upon his own resources at an early age, he entered upon the study of the law in the village in which his family resided. His legal studies were prosecuted in the office of the Hon. John Kincaid. He was admitted to the bar before he attained his majority. Although scarcely of the legal age, his party selected Mr. Hunton as the banner bearer of Mr. Clay for Lincoln County; and he was successful, being three times returned as a member of the Legislature. On his retirement from this office, he was appointed by Governor Metcalf Commonwealth Attorney for the district in which he resided. Mr. Hunton removed in 1838 to St. Louis, Mo., where he soon obtained a high rank in his profession. The following year he was married to an accomplished lady, the daughter of Dr. Moss of St. Louis. In 1845, Mr. Hunton was induced to make New Orleans his home. General Taylor appointed him U. S. District Attorney for the Eastern District of Louisiana. In all the transactions of life, his conduct is marked by the most scrupulous integrity, and he guards his honor with that sensitive care which has ever kept it far above suspicion. The hearty cordiality of his manner inspires full confidence in the integrity of his heart, and an acquaintance at once desires to become a friend." (18) Thomas, m. Miss Ella McGehee, of Mississippi, a lawyer, resides in New Orleans: had McGehee D.; Annie H., m., 1879, Gilbert Hunton Green, son of Charles Green and Lucie J. Hunton. (19) Charles Henry had James, now living in Prince William County; Logan, now in California; and three daughters. (20) James Innis, m. M. C. McNemara: had John Heath, Hugh C., James Innis, Robert Mayo. (21) General Eppa, b. in Farquier County, Sept. 23, 1823. He is a lawyer, was Commonwealth Attorney for Prince William County from 1849 to 1862. Entered the Confederate army as colonel of the 8th Virginia Infantry; promoted after Gettysburg, and served through the war as Brigadier-General; captured at Sailors' Creek, April 6, 1865; released from Fort Warren the July following. He was a member of the Forty-third, Forty-fourth, and Forty-fifth Congresses. General Hunton writes me as follows: "The family in Virginia has always been noted (excuse the remark) for integrity. They were all in comfortable circumstances before the late unfortunate war. Nearly all who could bear arms went into the Confederate army and are now poor, as the rest of Virginians are." General Eppa m. Lucy Weir, and has one son, Eppa, a lawyer.

THE HUNTON OR HUNTOON FAMILY

IN NEW ENGLAND

EXPLANATION. — Every male known to have had children is numbered in Arabic figures at the left of his name. When referred to a second time as the head of a family, his number will be found in the centre of the page, when his personal history and a list of his children will be given.

The Roman numerals designate the number of children in each family. b. stands for born, bap. for baptized, m. for married, unm. for unmarried, ab. for about, dau. for daughter, d. for died.

Philip Hunton, the immigrant ancestor, b. ab. 1664; m. ab. 1687, Betsey Hall, of Exeter, N. H.; (2) Hannah, d. Dec. 22, 1741. He d. May 10, 1752. "Very ancient."

PHILIP HUNTON, the ancestor of all of that name in New England, came to this country when a boy. Traditions in regard to the place from which he came vary. One is, that upon the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, a family bearing the name of Hunton fled from France and sought refuge in the island of Jersey, whence Philip came to America. Another tradition, of less authenticity, is, that he was the younger son of an English gentleman, and feeling deeply wronged at the manner in which his father's property was divided, resolved to seek his fortune in America.

Upon his arrival in this country, he was employed by a man at Exeter, N. H., named Hall. With the daughter of this man he fell in love, and subsequently married her.

The first mention we find of Philip is his name attached to "The humble Adresse of the inhabitants and train solders of ye Province of New Hampshire (Feb 20. 1689.) to the Hon^{able} the Governour and Council of their Maj^{ts} Colony of the Mattha-thusets in New England," setting forth that they were destitute of power sufficient to put themselves in a capacity of defence against the common enemy, and praying that protection may be afforded them as formerly.

On Feb. 21, 1697, the town of Exeter granted to "phillip huntune thirty acres of land joining to a piece of swamp, had formerly." Another grant is found on March 6, 1699. On June 12, 1702, Philip deeded a portion of this land. Philip left Exeter about 1703, and settled in Kingston, N. H., where in 1707 he, with others, deserted the town on account of danger from the Indians. The other inhabitants being much weakened thereby, it was ordered: "That Mr. Secretary Story write to the Captains of Exeter and Hampton, that they forthwith direct the persons aforesaid to return to their former habitations in Kingstown for the strengthening of the place against the common enemy, and in case they shall refuse so to do, the said captains are hereby ordered that when they send soldiers to her majesty's fort, William and Mary, that the above persons be the first that shall be sent there." They undoubtedly refused to return, and subsequent events proved that Philip, at least, had some cause for his fear; however, it was ordered "that Mr. Justice Dudley send for the said persons, and if they do not return to their settlements in Kingstown, that he bind them over the next quarter sessions and answer their contempt."

In 1708, Philip was again at home in Kingston, for he deeds the land he bought of Lieutenant John Fouslam on the north division of "Pickpocket Path."

On the morning of July 22, 1710, while Philip and his eldest son Samuel were ploughing in the field, not far from his house, they were surrounded by a band of Indians who fired upon them. Samuel fell mortally wounded. Philip and a neighbor named Jacob Gilman were taken prisoners, and suffered terrible indignities and cruelties from their inhuman captors. They were not only obliged to "run the gauntlet," but were tormented by many ingenious cruelties; the Indians would split their toe-nails and then pull them out with their teeth. Finally, after long marches, with food scarcely sufficient to sustain their exhausted natures, their feet bruised and bleeding, they arrived in Canada, and were sold as prisoners of war to the French. They were informed if they would build a saw-mill for the government and teach the French to saw lumber after the English method, they should have their freedom. They joyfully accepted such easy terms, erected the mill, instructed the French, and regained their freedom, although it is said the French never could make the mill run. This mill is said to have been the first for sawing lumber ever erected in Canada. Tradition says that Philip remained in Canada about two years before he again saw his home.

In 1719, Phillop Hunton, Senior, in consideration of good will and affection gives to his son John Huntoon, "bachaler, one-half of the land which belongs to the dwelling-house in which he lives, and the new frame of a house about four rods from the old one;" he further gives him all his share of "Trickling Falls" mill-pond, and his part and privilege of "Little River Mill," and John agrees to give his father four thousand of boards a year during his life. To his son Philip he gives, in 1729, "one-half of all my estate, and the other after my own and my wife's death; also fifty acres in the two hundred acre grant belonging to the original right of Philip Hunton Senior," and to his daughter Sarah, who married Darby Kelly, fifty acres.

The records say he married Betsey Hall of Exeter; she must have died before he removed to Kingston, for the Kingston records show, Sarah born in 1703 as the daughter of Philip by Hannah; again, "Hannah" relinquished dower in 1702. The name of Hannah heads the list of communicants "at the first gathering of the church at Kingston at the fast before the ordination of Mr. Ward Clark, Sept. 17, 1725." That she was a woman of deep religious nature would appear from the tradition that she called back from the field her two boys to say their morning hymn and Catechism on that eventful day when her husband was carried into captivity, and from the fact that her pastor says of her, "Died, Dec. 22, 1741, Hannah, wife of Philip Hunton, in a very composed and comfortable manner, after a long life of piety and virtue." Of his eldest son, Samuel, Belknap, in his "History of New Hampshire" says: "The same day that Colonel Hilton was killed, a company of Indians, who had pretended friendship, who the year before had been peaceably conversant with the inhabitants of Kingston, and seemed to be thirsty after the blood of the enemy, came into the town, and, ambushing the road, killed Samuel Winslow and Samuel Huntoon." This occurred on Kingston Plain, not far from Philip's home. Samuel was scalped and left by the Indians for dead; he, however, survived in great agony for twenty-four hours, when he died. The father, as has been stated, was taken prisoner. The two younger sons, Philip and John, were saved from capture, possibly death, by a singular and almost miraculous providence. They started to follow their father and brother into the ploughing field, but were recalled by their mother to repeat to her, as was their custom, their morning prayer and hymn. They returned, as directed, and this incident probably saved their lives.

Benjamin (Philip,² Philip¹), b. Sept. 4, 1729; d. Dec. 12, 1815; m. (1), Feb. 7, 1750, Judith (or Sarah?) Clough, of Poplin; she d. April 17, 1756; (2) Abigail Page, January, 1757; d. July 17, 1778; (3) Mercy Dearborn (Widow Quimby), b. Aug. 21, 1732; d. Oct. 23, 1791; (4) Hannah James (widow of Samuel Dearborn), June 21, 1792, from Kensington.

BENJAMIN was born in Kingston, N. H. At the age of sixteen we find him as a private soldier in the 7th Massachusetts Regiment, then commanded by Colonel Shubael Gorham, and serving in the company commanded by Captain Edward Cole. This regiment took part in the memorable expedition against Louisburg. In 1746 Captain Daniel Ladd enlisted a company to do scout duty; the muster roll contains the names of Nathaniel and Benjamin Hunton. In 1750 Governor Wentworth ordered the enlistment of a troop at Kingston, and Charles, John, Jr., and Benjamin joined it; it was commanded by Colonel Atkinson. After the engagement on Lake George, September, 1755, reinforcements were called for, and New Hampshire furnished a second regiment of three hundred men under Colonel Peter Gilman, of Exeter; in the 6th Company John Hunton was lieutenant. Benjamin enlisted September 19, and was discharged October 13, having in the mean time marched to Albany and back, but seeing no active service. In 1776 "General Folsom was ordered to deliver Mr. Benjamin Huntoon eleven pounds of powder for the use of New Britton." In 1777 he served under General Stark at the battle of Bennington, as will appear from the Centennial Address of President Bartlett, p. 79. In 1778 he was engaged in apprehending deserters. In 1783, as constable of Salisbury, he received money to defend the western frontier.

The writer has in his possession a wrought-iron pipe which formerly belonged to Benjamin, and which came into his possession in the following manner. While serving as a sergeant in one of the companies of a New Hampshire regiment, Benjamin Huntoon was, with a detail of men, ordered out on skirmish duty. Advancing through the woods, Huntoon discovered on the opposite side of a stream, behind a clump of bushes, a British officer, whom he judged by his uniform to be a lieutenant. This officer would load, then rise, and pick off, one at a time, the advancing Americans. Huntoon, taking good aim, fired the next time his head appeared, and after the skirmish was over, swam the stream and reached the enemy's covert, where he found the officer mortally wounded and in great agony. The officer's faithful servant begged for their lives, and the officer, taking his sword and watch, offered them to Huntoon, saying, "It is the fortune of war; if you had not shot me I should have killed you." Huntoon refused the sword and watch, when the officer, pulling from his stocking a well-filled purse, passed it to him. Huntoon held it in his hand a moment; it was filled with gold, and very heavy: the temptation was great, but this also he could not take from so brave and generous a man. Finally the officer said to him, "At least you will take this as a souvenir," and he handed him a wrought-iron pipe, saying to him that it had been his companion since he left England, and had been his solace on many a dreary night and weary march, and begged him to take it. Huntoon took the pipe, clasped the hand of the gallant young officer, and rejoined his command.

Benjamin probably went to Salisbury about 1772; for this year George Jaffrey of Portsmouth deeded "to Benjamin Huntoon, of Kingstown, a certain lot of land reputed a one hundred acre lot, numbered sixty-four in Salisbury." In 1786 he is described as "gentleman" and "Dekon." When married in 1792, he is styled "Elder," and the Rev. Thomas Worcester and Rev. Benjamin Huntoon, in writing of him, call him "Elder."

removed to Unity in 1772, the charter of this town having been granted eight years before. He was an officer in the old French war. In 1777 his name appears on the list in Captain Hunton's company of Colonel Bellows's regiment, then about to join General Stark. He was prominent in civil life, and was usually called "Squire Charles." He represented in the General Court the six following towns, — Unity, Lempster, Acworth, Saville (now Wendell), Croyden, and Newport.

On an article on longevity in the New Hampshire Historical Society's collections, appeared the following: "Died, in 1820, Captain John Huntoon, aged ninety-two. His wife died the same week aged eighty-six. They lived together sixty-five years. Captain Huntoon was born at Kingston, and removed to Canterbury about fifteen years before his death. He was a soldier sent with others to guard the inhabitants against the invasion of the savages, about the time the Bradleys were killed at Concord, Aug. 11, 1746. Captain Ladd and his men were sent by the governor to protect the inhabitants of Rumford. They marched from Kingston on July 19, 1746."

BENJAMIN resided on the farm occupied by his father, and lived to be one of the oldest inhabitants of Salisbury. He has related to the compiler the visit the "Great Daniel" once made him, when Webster was at the height of his fame, and a long conversation ensued in regard to old times. He was a man of some prominence in his town, a deacon of the church from 1815 to the close of his life, and respected for his honesty. The following is an account of a visit of Rev. Benjamin Huntoon to his birthplace in 1845:—

"There is something pleasing and something melancholy in revisiting, after the lapse of years, the land of one's nativity. The scenery of nature, the rocks, the hills, the valleys, remain unchanged. The mountains rear their bold summits to the same sky, and mark their rugged profiles upon its blue surface. The forest wears the same aspect, it is composed of the same kind of trees as it was fifty years ago, though some of its giants have fallen to the ground and have disappeared. The general face of nature is the same. But the face of humanity, how changed! The playmates and schoolfellows of childhood and youth have become old and gray-headed, and the strong men have bowed to their destiny and are gathered to their long homes, the resting-places of the dead. A new generation has arisen, bearing some traces of the lineaments of their ancestors, the sure indexes by which I could trace their parentage. My visit, however, was pleasant to the old homestead, and the greetings I received were cordial and affectionate. Father, now past eighty years of age, was hale and active for one so far advanced in the valley of life. He is the only survivor among the patriarchs of my native village. All the rest, who were heads of families when I was a boy, have paid the debt of nature, and sleep with their fathers in the humble cemetery for the dead. He is the only link that binds the present generation to the past, so soon time sweeps over the face of the earth and gathers its fleeting population into the arms of the oblivious grave."

Aaron (John,³ John,² Philip¹), b. June 9, 1758; m. Jan. 11, 1781, Elizabeth Smith.

Colcord Patten, in his manuscript history of Kingston, N. H., says: "He served in the Revolutionary War from its beginning to its close. Often has he been listened to with breathless attention while he related the story of his hardships and sufferings. This old soldier did not shoulder his crutch and show how fields were won, for fortunately he was never wounded in battle, although some fell by his side. But he was at the capture of Burgoyne's army, when the British lion for the first time cowered to the American eagle, and said he, 'I was the first soldier that stood at the gate when the British army marched out.' He used to relate that he had sometimes put on a new pair of shoes in the morning, and so poorly made were they that they fell to pieces before night, so that he was forced to go barefooted. He was paid off in Continental money, so depreciated in value that he had hardly enough to bring him home. He resided in Kingston several years after the war, and then removed to Epping, where he died at an advanced age, a government pensioner."

COLONEL NATHAN was born at Unity, was active in the formation of the Baptist Church in that town, and for many years held the office of deacon in that organization. In his younger days, when the military spirit of New Hampshire was at its height, he rose from a private soldier by regular promotion to be colonel of the 16th Regiment (1822). When he was over sixty years of age, the militia in his vicinity having been called out on parade, he shouldered his firelock and took his place in the ranks. It was suggested that he allow his name to be used for the captaincy of the company; he accepted the office. The next year he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel, and the third year (1850) to colonel.

He united with the Masonic Fraternity soon after he came of age. The "Boston Journal" of July 17, 1873, says, in its account of the celebration at Goshen, N. H., "The Masonic Fraternity was under the marshalship of Colonel Nathan Huntoon, of Unity, ninety-one years of age, and the oldest member of the order in Sullivan County, and perhaps in the State." He was selectman of Unity for many years.

At the last gubernatorial election preceding his death, he was too feeble to attend the polls. He mentioned to a Republican friend that he had never failed to vote for governor since he was twenty-one, and that he "always voted the Democratic ticket." His friend remarked that he should have the opportunity to vote again; and accordingly, in consideration of his great age, his long residence in town, and his respectable standing as a citizen, moved, That the town-meeting adjourn to the house of Colonel Nathan Huntoon for the purpose of taking his vote. The motion was seconded by a leading gentleman of his own party, and carried by a unanimous vote, — the only compliment of the kind, it is believed, ever extended to a private citizen in the State of New Hampshire.

The following is taken from the "New England Historic-Genalogical Register," April, 1865: —

"The early life of Mr. Huntoon was passed on his father's farm. He commenced his academical studies preparatory to entering college, at the academy in Salisbury, and was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1817. During all this time he supported himself by teaching school. He had the ninth appointment in the graduating exercises, which was a dialogue with Mr. Benjamin Woodbury, who was his college chum, on the question, 'Which of the learned professions is more favorable to literary eminence, Divinity or Law?' Mr. Huntoon taking the side of Divinity. After leaving college, he taught the academy in his native town until 1819, when he entered upon the study of Divinity at Andover Theological Seminary, and soon commenced his preparation for the ministry. In the spring of 1820 he removed to Boston, and took charge of an academy in Salem Street. While carrying on this school, he was invited to the ministry of the First Congregational Church in Canton, Mass., and was ordained Jan. 30, 1822, Rev. John Pierce, of Brookline, preaching the sermon, and Rev. Henry Ware, Jr., of Boston, giving the Right Hand of Fellowship. He became widely and favorably known as a most earnest worker and eloquent preacher. In the latter part of the year 1829 he was called upon to preach the sermon at the dedication of a new Unitarian Church in Bangor, Me. The society prevailed upon him to form a connection with them, and he was accordingly installed at Bangor in June, 1830. In this then almost isolated position, demanding arduous labors, his health began to fail. In the fall of 1833 he asked and received a dismissal from that church, and spent the winter in Savannah, Ga., preaching to the Unitarian Society there. In 1834 he returned to the North with reinvigorated health, and was installed over the First Congregational Church in Milton, Oct. 15, 1834. Again, on account of failing health, he was obliged to resign his charge, and passed the winter in the then far West, preaching at Peoria, Ill., and in Chicago. In the spring of 1837 he was invited to settle in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he remained one year. In June, 1838, he went to Peoria, where he remained preaching to the First Unitarian Church there until August, 1840, when he was invited by the church in Canton, where he had been first ordained, to return, and he was accordingly reinstalled at Canton, March 13, 1841.

In 1849 he resigned the pastorate and went to Marblehead, and became pastor of the Second Congregational Society in that place. In 1855, his health failing, he left that place, and in May, 1856, took charge of the parish in Winchendon, where he remained until Nov. 8, 1857. In April, 1859, he was installed over the society in Westborough, but, his health continuing to fail, he was forced to relinquish his charge in February, 1860. In the fall of that year, having a desire to return to the place where he had been first ordained to the ministry, and where he had passed so many happy years, he returned to Canton, and refitted and repaired his old house. Here he spent the declining years of his life, blessed with the love and fellowship of those who had known and revered him in his earlier days, a constant worshipper and an occasional preacher in the church which was erected through his exertions in the first years of his ministry. Here was the first home of his manhood, full of tender and hallowed associations and remembrances. Here he had consecrated and helped to adorn the cemetery where the forms of many of his flock and his household are laid. And here, amidst cherished remembrances, sustained by Christian faith and Christian hope, surrounded by loving friends, and watched with devoted and affectionate care, he continued in feeble and declining health, until on the morning of Sunday he was suddenly smitten with paralysis, passing gently away, and entered on his rest and reward.

“Mr. Huntoon was an active and zealous laborer in the cause of human brotherhood. He recognized and steadfastly maintained the rights of all men. His soul overflowed with affectionate tenderness towards all with whom he came in contact; his noble nature manifested itself in obliging deeds. How truly he adorned his profession, how beautifully lived the Christian life!

“Rev. Dr. Thompson, of Jamaica Plain, at the funeral spoke of him as having been one peculiarly fitted to be a pioneer in the advance of Liberal Christianity. His services were sought for by the infant churches in every part of the country. There was an earnestness of personal, vital piety, an animated hopefulness, and an enthusiasm of manner, which gave great power and effect to all his pulpit labors. He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity upwards of forty years; was Grand High Priest of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Massachusetts in 1849-51; afterwards a Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge. He was one or more years High Priest of Mount Zion Chapter at Stoughton. He connected himself with the Historic-Genealogical Society in 1860.

"Mr. Huntoon delivered many occasional discourses and addresses, some of which were published. Among them: Masonic Address at Walpole, 1823; Oration at laying Cornerstone of the Court House, Dedham, July 4, 1825; Sermon at Dedication of the Church erected by the Second Congregational Society in North Bridgewater, Aug. 9, 1826; Address at the Installation of the Officers of Mount Zion Royal Arch Chapter, Stoughton, Dec. 15, 1828; A Discourse delivered before the Second Religious Society in Dedham, South Parish (Norwood), Jan. 11, 1829; Sermon at Dedication of the Church at Bangor, 1829; Sermon at Belgrade, Me., 1831; Sermon at Installation of Rev. William Farmer, Augusta, Me., 1831; Sermon at Re-opening and Dedication of the Church of the First Congregational Parish, Milton, Dec. 9, 1835; Masonic Address at Ottawa, Ill., 1839; Eulogy delivered by the request of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts at the funeral services in commemoration of Rev. Thaddeus Mason Harris, D.D., and Samuel Thaxter, at the Masonic Temple in Boston, May 4, 1842; An Address delivered at New Haven, Centennial Celebration of Hiram Lodge, Sept. 5, 1850."

For his gallant services in the Arkansas campaign, he was made colonel by brevet. During the Price raid he was at the battles of Little Blue, Independence, Big Blue, Westport, and Mine Creek, following the retreating rebel army until it crossed the Arkansas River. He was appointed commissary-general under General Blunt, which position he resigned in order to join his command at Fort Laramie, and participated in the severe winter campaign at Powder and White rivers. He subsequently commanded a stockade at Horseshoe, thirty miles north of Laramie. The war over, he has followed his profession of engineer, and has also been engaged in trade in Topeka. WHILE the foregoing book was passing through the press, the following article appeared in the Boston Journal from the special correspondent at Kingston, N. H. From the initials I judge it to be the son of Colcord Patten, whose manuscript history of Kingston still exists.

In writing of an ancient document he says, —

“John Huntoon, John Calef, and Daniel Colcord, whose names also appear on the document, were among the most honored of the early citizens of Kingston. The Huntoons emigrated early to the upper part of the State. There are none of that name now living in Kingston. They were a very tall race of men. My father, who knew some of them, has often spoken to me of their imposing personal appearance ; and I heard Daniel Webster, who knew quite intimately some of the tall Huntoons, speak also of their splendid bearing. There are Calefs still in this vicinity. They bear an honored name. The Daniel Colcord of the document was an ancestor of the present able President of Dartmouth College, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Colcord Bartlett. His honored forefather was a leading and most able citizen ; but he could not spell quite as well as a Dartmouth graduate of to-day.”
